6. Threat assessment: Visitors are reminded that crime is a problem in Georgetown, especially after dark, in major business and shopping districts. Pick pocketing and robbery are common in Georgetown. Foreigners may be perceived as wealthy individuals, which may make them targets for robbery, theft, and kidnapping for ransom. In addition, Guyana has suffered from occasional political and labor unrest. Although such demonstrations are not directed at U.S. citizens, we advise visitors to be vigilant to changes in the security situation, maintain a low profile, and be prepared for the unexpected. The Consular information sheet for Guyana can be accessed at www.state.gov or <http://georgetown.usembassy.gov>.
